WE have brought down our short History of the Tories to the Close of Queen Anne's Reign, where we left them, between twenty and thirty Years after they had renounced all their slavish Principles, acting in Defence of every Principle of Liberty, on purpose to reverse that

Revolution which the Author of the Dissertation them the Honour of bringing about, and to the Protestant Succession, on which all our of continuing the Blessings of the Revolution ed; and without which it would only have as a Taste of the Pleasures of Liberty, to make sure Weight of Slavery lie so much the heavier left them rioting in their Tyranny; actually ing large Bodies of Men (all fast Friends to the ant Succession) of the Education of their Children; attempting to deprive them of their Votes in Par- for mere Difference in Opinion or Practice, Religion itself; but the Trappings, the Dresses, ments of it: Which Attempts too, design'd as atory to the Restoration of the Abdicated Family, have succeeded; or, however, involved us in e Miseries and Desolation of a Civil War, had en the King of Terrors, Death himself, been o us than their best Wishes; and put the on out of those imminent Dangers which their s and Affairs threaten'd it with.

At the defeating the Protestant Succession, and the Pretender upon the Throne, was the at that Time, of the Court-Tories, and the al Expectation and Hopes of the Body of them out the Kingdom; no Man, in his Senses, ; many Instances we produced in our last Dis- to support the Truth of it; more might be ; but, the Circumstances of Things spoke so and the high Probability of the Evidence ap- and so near to Certainty, that some of the more ate and sensible Tories began to see, and own

Thomas Hammer, the Speaker, upon the famous e in the House of Commons about the Danger ecession, when the Court Party seem'd willing p the Question thro' fear of the Event, stood aid, 'He was sorry to see that Endeavours uled to wave the Question, and stop their th; but, he was of Opinion, this was the , and perhaps the only Time for Patriots to ; that a great deal of Pains had been taken

GREEN SOME PERSONS, (the Author of the ation can tell us their Names, and their Na-) and in order to that, to make them overlook Dangers that threatened the Queen, the Nation, the Protestant Succession: That for his Part, ad all the Honour and Respect imaginable for Majesty's Ministers; but that he still owed more Country, than to any Minister; that, in the e, so much had been said to prove the Succession in Danger, and so little to make out the com- that he could not but believe the first; and upon, he took Notice of Sir Patrick Lawless suffered to come over, and admitted to an e of the Queen.

Sir Patrick Lawless, was one of those who at King James the Second into France, and was sent into Spain; but, notwithstanding he low'd, he had now Leave to return privately land, upon some secret Intrigues then on foot e some of our Ministers and the Court of France, to the Pretender. Licences, also, from the e were procured to bring over other Out-laws; any Books, besides Bedford's, published to the Nation to embrace his Interest, in which olution was openly condemn'd.

The Time would fail us to reckon up all the ances which concurred, at that time, to put ysterous Design of the Tories beyond all Doubt; only generally believed, but certainly known, e Pretender was, then, in England; had private es; a Pension settled; and the Promise of a ion as soon as Things were ripe for Action; and as fast as could be done consistent with their own Safety: For, tho' they had all the Papists and Jacobites on their Side, with the main Body of the Tories throughout the Kingdom; yet, 'tis believed, they were not sure of a Majority in that House of Commons, bad as it was; and, therefore, were obliged to wait for, or prepare more favourable Junctures. Besides, they knew, that the Whigs, or Friends of Liberty and the Protestant Succession began to meet, rendezvous, associate and resolve, at the Hazard of their Lives and Fortunes, to stand up in defence of the Protestant Religion, and the Liberties of the People: So that, tho' the Hanover Family was taught to be spoken of with great Disrespect; the Succession sneer'd at; and the Jure divino Right of the Stuart Family publicly avowed; yet, God be thanked, there were Cowards amongst the Ministry, whose Fears respited our Destruction till Providence saved us.

Thus have we seen what Part these converted Tories (as our Author calls them) acted till the Hanover Succession took Place: Let us now see what they have done since, to prove the Sincerity of their Conversion to Principles of Whiggism.

THEY rebell'd almost as soon as the first of the Family was crown'd; many of these Tories actually enter'd into the Rebellion; and most of the rest seem'd, by all their Looks, Words, and Actions, to wish them Success: A Rebellion, the most unnatural, because the most unreasonable that ever Men, not divested of common Sense and Honesty, could ever engage in: A Rebellion against all the Blessings that a Protestant and a Free Country could enjoy: A Rebellion against their own Laws and Liberties, and against the Establishment of every thing valuable in this World: A Rebellion, rais'd thro' mere Rage and Disappointment, at the Loss of their hereditary King; and thro' Spight and Hatred to the Family upon the Throne; and that too, before their Passions had any thing offer'd to set them on Fire, and without the least Pretence of a Provocation, besides the single Provocation of offering them Happiness in a Way, and by the Hands which they were not pleas'd to approve of.—But, the publick Efforts of their Malice were defeated: They were conquer'd in the Field, tho' not in Heart, their Spirits, their Tempers, their Designs and Principles, did not at all appear to be conquer'd, if we may make a Judgment from their indefatigable Diligence and Art, in filling the Heads of their well-wishers, as soon as one desperate Attempt was over, with Hints and Expectations of another, and from the unparalleled Insolence of their Agents and Followers, even whilst they were begging and waiting for Mercy.

BUT, not to enlarge further upon this Subject of the Rebellion, rais'd at a time when the Leaders of the Party had left the Nation in an almost defenceless Condition, so defenceless, that we were ignominiously forced to send for foreign Troops to preserve ourselves; let us take a View of what our new Converts have done since, to convince unprejudiced Men, that they are Friends to the Revolution, and the present Settlement of the Crown. In a Word, they have acted in one continued Opposition to all the Measures of the Government, and shew'd the utmost Rancour and Malice to every Administration, and to all publick Acts of every Administration, both in domestick and foreign Affairs, ever since the Protestant Succession took Place; they have always voted for, and chose such Members of Parliament as they knew would oppose the Court in all Things, right or wrong, just or unjust; nor could they ever be brought (so rooted is their Inveteracy to the true Friends of the Government) to espouse heartily the Interest of one Whig, tho' he happened to be with them in their Opposition.

THESE are strong Proofs, indeed, of their high Regards to the present Government! But to this, it is answer'd, that their Regards to their Country, are higher and stronger than to any Family in the World; that the Government is against the Constitution; and, the Friends of the Government, Enemies to the Constitution; and, therefore, they are Enemies to the Government, and the Friends of the Government.

THIS is a Distinction put about by the Author of the Dissertation; and shall be fully discussed in our next Paper.

A Seasonable Caution to all PYRMONT and SPAW Water-Drinkers.

THERE are frequently Imported Quantities of false Waters, sold by divers Druggists and others, which may be distinguish'd by their having no Marks on the Bottles, or Seals on the Flasks: Whereas no Bottles are suffer'd to be fill'd at the Pyrmont Spring, without having Impressed on the Bottles, either in Whole or in Part (as in the Margin) the Arms of the Prince of Waldeck, in whose Country the said Spring is situated.

SO likewise the true SPA WATERS have the adjoining Impression (being the Arms of the Prince of Lixen, in whose Country the SPA Fountains are situated) either impress'd in Glass on the Neck of the Flask, or sealed with the same in Wax on the Cap of Leather, or both.

Such Pyrmont or SPA Waters as are not thus distinguish'd, are assuredly Spurious, and there are no small Quantities of such Imported — which is the Reason of giving this Caution.
